On November 8, 2016, Atlanta voters will have the opportunity to cast their ballots for two ballot referenda authorizing investment in transit and transportation infrastructure.

The City of Atlanta has proposed a special purpose local option sales tax for transportation – a TSPLOST – for four-tenths of a penny or an additional 4 cents on a $10 purchase. This TSPLOST will generate approximately $300 million over a five-year period to fund significant and expansive transportation projects citywide.

The City of Atlanta proposed TSPLOST project list is a smart, equitable approach to the city’s long-term mobility and connectivity needs.

The projects were chosen through a rational process premised on a comprehensive strategy, long-standing priorities, project-readiness, ability to leverage current capital spending and the Renew Atlanta bond program.

The projects maximize federal, state and business community partnerships to build more, build smarter.

The projects will add to Atlanta’s economic competitiveness and will benefit residents, employers, employees and visitors across the City.

Accountability and transparency are built into the project list and implementation plan.

If approved, 94 percent of all Atlanta residents and 98 percent of the city’s jobs will be within a half-mile of a proposed TSPLOST, MARTA or Renew Atlanta bond transportation or infrastructure project.
MARTA, the Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority, has also proposed a half-penny sales tax for transit expansion and enhancements in the City of Atlanta. The approval of the two referenda will implement high priority projects from the Connect Atlanta Plan, the City’s comprehensive transportation plan, the Atlanta Streetcar System Plan, and Concept3, the Atlanta region’s transit plan, and more than a dozen neighborhood and community plans that have been adopted in the last six years, and features projects in nearly all of the city’s commercial districts.

If approved, 94 percent of all Atlanta residents and 98 percent of the city’s jobs will be within a half-mile of a proposed T-SPLOST, MARTA or Renew Atlanta transportation of infrastructure project.

These two sales tax proposals, if passed, will only take effect within the Atlanta city limits, and only Atlanta voters will have the opportunity to cast their ballots.

Current sales tax in the City of Atlanta is 8 percent. The proposed TSPLOST is for an additional .4 percent sales tax. If the MARTA referendum is also approved, sales tax within the City of Atlanta would be set at 8.9 percent for five years. If approved, the TSPLOST will take effect on April 1, 2017.

Maintaining the public’s confidence is important to the City of Atlanta. The program requires an annual audit tracking cost estimates and expenditures as well as an annual report underscoring transparency, efficiency and effectiveness in project delivery.
